Despite Projections

JESD Plan Goes Ahead

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Daly City is faced with a declining student population for at least the next 7 years, according to projections made by authorities in the education field.

And future growth of San Mateo County's second largest city is now forecast for the northeastern sector of the city, specifically San Bruno Mountain and its environs.

For more than a year redevelopment and rehabilition studies have been directed to the "old" Daly City area around the Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) station on Knowles Avenue.

Despite these facts, the administration of the Jefferson Elementary School District is pushing for construction of the Savage School facility in the St. Francis Heights area — on the opposite side of the city.

Cost of the school facility is estimated at $1.8 million. This does not include furnishing or staffing of the school.

Since the property was purchased in 1964 much change has been witnessed in the neighborhood. Convalescent hospitals for the elderly sick have been built; a medical-dental facility is now under construction; a much traveled freeway (Cabrillo) will have to dig into their pockets to pay off the bonds.

He says the tax rate will not be raised from its present figure.

Asked how this can come about inasmuch as once the bond money is spent it will not be accumulating dividends, Greenwood explained the present structure of the property tax rate was arranged last year to include the payoff of the bonds.

Cirties of Greenwood's policy on construction of the school allege the superintendent apparently assumed beforehand that the Board of Trustees approve this construction thereby using the bond issue monies, as well as unspent funds of $400,000 accumulated over the years from other projects.

The Savage School site could be the panacea for all educational ills currently afflicting the district, Greenwood's report indicates.

Portable classrooms, now the basis for some criticism of the school administration, would be shuffled around to where they are better suited. Or they could be used for warehousing, school instructional classrooms for in-service training of certified personnel.

Even before the report and recommendation is made to the JESD Board on January 3, Trustee Mrs. Dorothy Adams, who has been tightfisted with taxpayers' money during her tenure on the board, thinks the location of the school "is in the wrong place at the wrong time."

She said the district now has more than enough classrooms to house children.

This is justified, she says, by the fact state figures reveal that JESD has enough classrooms for 11,000 children. Last year there were only some 9,000 children enrolled. This figure is expected to drop even further in 1973.

"This (school) is simply another burden on taxpayers of this district. It is a luxury that the community can ill-afford at this time," Adams said.

Greenwood disagrees.

He said construction of the school will not only demand a minimal amount of additional help to operate, it will cut costs of bus operation by some six buses and could result in converting at least two schools—Crocker and Little Jeff, both built over 35 years ago—into child care centers.

Instead of spending money "on a new school in a part of the city that doesn't need it," Mrs. Adams suggested programs for remedial reading, social studies and health-science be instituted.

bond issue amounting to some school.

Taxpayers did pass in 1964 a bond issue amounting to some $1.4 million. The bonds were sold to the Bank of America and for the past few years have been making money for the district.

For example, while the unspent bond money was in the bank it drew slightly more than the five per cent required to "pay off" the issue.

The money overage realized was invested.

Greenwood disagrees that once the bond money is withdrawn to pay for construction of the Savage School taxpayers

This is the first highly trained group of volunteers to be known as "SARWETS" (Sea-Air-Rotary-Wing-Evacuation Team). The men are specially trained to leap directly from helicopters into the sea in dangerous surf and rock areas to save people in distress. The program requires training in oceanography, medical treatment, scuba diving, physical training, and long distance swimming. # Sad Christmas for Pacifica Pair

Christmas Day was a sad day for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Morage of 712 Edgemar Avenue, Pacifica.

They had spent Christmas Eve visiting their son and grandchildren down the coast, returning late to find their street blocked off by police.

"You can't go by, there's a fire," the officer told them.

"Where?"

"At 712 Edgemar Avenue," the police officer replied.

They found the flames still playing around their living room, with their Christmas tree burned to the size of a broomstick, and the gaily wrapped gifts in ashes. The remainder of their home was completely blackened.

Firemen first learned about the disaster when two excited boys dashed into their station.

"There's a fire up the street!"

"Just a minute. What's the address?"

Just then, the fire alarm phone rang with a neighbor calling in the fire. Other calls followed about the house "exploding." Actually, the picture windows had blown out from the intense heat. By that time, firemen needed no address. The burning house made a red glow in the sky—and firemen found they had just a block and a half to go.

Neighbors helped reel out the hoses as firemen from the Linda Mar station, who had been called for help, were on their way. They found the entrance way in flames and had to enter through the side windows.

Firemen are still investigating the cause, which they have been unable to determine. Although a small fire had been left in the fireplace by the Morages, the fireplace screen was found intact.

The Morages spent Christmas with relatives.

Bay Area Looks at Los Angeles Fight Against Noise Pollution

By GEORGE GOLDING

Tough anti-noise action by the Los Angeles Board of Airport Commissioners last week raised questions of possible similar action at Bay Area airports as well as the question of exactly what airlines can do to reduce jet noise.

The Los Angeles Airport Board adopted a five-point program including new landing and take-off procedures, a "dollars for decibels" schedule of landing fees, and a noise law enforcement division for the Department of Airports.

A key feature in the Los Angeles plan is a requirement that all takeoffs and landings will be over the ocean, instead of over neighboring communities, between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

The system has been tried since September, and raises fears among some airline pilots about the possibility of head-on plane crashes during operations to and from adjoining runways.

Los Angeles Airport spokeswoman Peggy Hereford said the overwater takeoffs and landings would be possible 90 per cent of the time. When weather forbids overwater approaches and takeoffs, planes which do not meet Federal Aviation Administration noise standards will be forbidden to use Los Angeles International.

The ban on noisy aircraft operating over neighboring communities is accompanied by a "fleet noise rule" requiring that the noisier planes be phased out of the airline fleet by 1979. Continued violation of airport noise requirements, she said, would result in "cancellation of the airline's operating permit and the right to use Los Angeles International Airport."

The fifth phase of the plan calls for the airport staff to continue working for legislation "to achieve a stronger method for developing compatible land use in the various communities around" the airport. She explained that the rules were prepared by airport staffers on direction of airport commissioners "to diminish liabilities from nuisance suits" and to "provide minimum noise impact on residents of neighboring communities."

While considering the program, she said, airport officials studied the pending Air Transport Association suit against California noise laws and the Burbank aviation curfew now being reviewed by the U. S. Supreme Court.

The spokeswoman said the airport expects the new requirements to force airlines to take action toward reducing aircraft noise. The move, she said, "is to encourage a fleet of quiet airplanes, such as the new generation of DC-10's, 747-200's, Lockheed L-1011's, and certain models of the Boeing 727-230."

She said Los Angeles Airport officers have information that some airlines have continued ordering the older (and noisier) model of the Boeing 727, although a quieter model is available at an extra cost of about $200,000 per plane. Noise requirements established for the airport, she added, are those

Girl Scouts Aid Police in D.C.

Members of Daly City Girl Scout Troop 446 are helping police in their efforts to reduce house burglaries in Daly City.

The police department recently launched an attack on residential burglaries though its "Speakers' Bureau" by making local citizens more conscious about the importance of home security.

The scouts, led by Mrs. Richard Futrell and Mrs. Alan Knox, are making a door to door canvas to discuss the matter with residents. They are also distributing literature on the subject and encouraging residents to contact police if they wish to attend one of the sessions on Burglary Prevention.

Operation Identification is designed to encourage neighbors to get involved in alerting police when their neighbor's property is endangered, instead of looking the other way when they see suspicious circumstances.

Several programs have been presented throughout the city during which a film on the subject is shown. At these presentations locks and burglary tools used in the rash of recent home burglaries is displayed.

The Daly City police department has urged all local residents to participate in the program and to take advantage of the free loan of engraving tools, available at police stations, which can be used to mark household items which may be subject to theft.

Decals are also handed out to place on doors warning would-be housebreakers that all property on the premises is marked for identification by police and pawn shops. These gummed labels are supplied free by the police department.

The program is sponsored in part by the Daly City Exchange Club and Golden West Savings. It has proven it is value in other cities in recent years, police said, by lowering thefts.

1972 Review—San Bruno Gets Start as Major Business Center

By BOB PETERSON

Sleepy San Bruno awoke during 1972.

It's still a bedroom community. But the commercial growth this past year, and that anticipated for the next, has aroused a reputedly passive city, and will make San Bruno a major business center of the Peninsula.

City Manager Gerald Minford, celebrating his first anniversary as that city's top administrator, is confident San Bruno has a "real fantastic future."

According to Minford, San Bruno will be a key city on the Peninsula as far as being a business center.

The physical location of San Francisco International Airport has always been an asset. The slogan "San Bruno, the Airport City" signifies that fact.

But now a one-time race track, where people would put their money down and hope for a winner, has become a sure thing — for the customer, merchant and particularly for the city — in increased revenue.

Some days it's near to impossible to find a parking spot at the Tanforan Park Shopping Center.

And what's next?

Already in the works is a second major shopping center, known as Bayhill Shopping Center. This proposed facility will evolve not more than a mile from Tanforan Park.

That entire section of San Bruno, generally bound by Interstate 280 and El Camino Real on the west and east, and San Bruno Avenue and Sneath Lane on the south and north, will be getting a facelift.

In addition to Bayhill, and the already existing Place Apartments, which will have more units added, plans exist to replace the Avansino-Mortonson nursery with an office building complex.

And the Navy Reserve base site is scheduled to house brand new federal office buildings.

It would appear to be a rosy picture, indeed.

These projects, and other voluminous planning and development projects in the city finally led to the hiring of a full-time planner. Something Minford says should have been done years ago.

That planner, Jack Mulqueeney, was hired for the dual role of planner-assistant city manager. "He's 180 per cent planner," says Minford.

With the two new shopping centers, it might appear the downtown area is suffering significantly. Not so. Many of the merchants might agree to a temporary slack. But they've convinced there's plenty of business to go around. They are confident enough to put their money where their confidence is.

So by spring, another major shopping area will be sprucing itself up. Renovation of the downtown San Mateo Avenue district also will be contributed to by the city, which must of necessity replace outmoded underground piping.

Like every other city, San Bruno received federal revenue sharing. Some may downplay this "borrow from Peter to pay Paul" money shift. But Minford feels at it optimistically.

"Revenue sharing will help us do capital improvement projects on an accelerated basis, that would not have been possible before in that time span. Or we would have had to resort to bond issues," said Minford.

Another step forward is the effort between the San Bruno and Millbrae fire departments to initiate joint response to fires. It may seem to be merely an extension of mutual aid, but the proposal shows an interest in serving more while spending less.

The year past has left its scars, too.

Crystal Springs still rings with a sour note to some. The Crystal Springs Terrace apartment project undoubtedly will go down in San Bruno's history as a planning and development mishmash that should never have been. Minford says the mixup and misunderstandings never should have been, had the city had a full-time planner.

Resident conservationists staged an anti-freeway fight that isn't over, but hopefully for them will eventually prevent the rape of Crestmoor Canyon.

During 1972, one of San Bruno city government's stalwarts, Maurice Hamilton, retired from the active political scene after 12 years on the council to become city attorney of San Mateo. The voters elected insurance man John Barnard to fill the council vacancy.

Many of the events of 1972 have already been forgotten. Many scars will remain through 1973.

But now that San Bruno has awakened, its muscles will be flexed.

More Steps Taken in SSF Reorganization

There will be no replacement appointed for South San Francisco administrative assistant Jack Meline, who resigned Monday.

Instead, City Manager Gale Driesbach announced the duties of two city officials have been increased.

Although Meline was generally regarded as the city personnel officer, Dreisbach explained that, in actuality, he, Dreisbach, holds that title.

The duties will be shared by Edward Alario, recently appointed to the newly created post of finance director, and deputy city attorney John Shaw.

Alario has been appointed assistant to the city manager while Shaw was named staff representative to the personnel board. Personnel clerk Juanita Wydler will continue carrying out the routine functions of the personnel office. Dreisbach will handle the personnel decisions.

Dreisbach pledged that "the wheels will keep moving" on filling the vacant city billets. Advertising is now in progress to fill two recreation supervisors' posts, and other examinations are in the works for fire and police positions.

Part of the objective of the reorganization, Dreisbach said, is to define the office of finance director, which has recently been created. Numerous functions of city government are being transferred to that post, which overnight has become one of the major city departments.

Man Arrested For Burglary In Daly City

A Daly City policeman arrested a suspected burglar as he allegedly tried to break his way out of an auto maintenance shop at the Serramonte Shopping Center Christmas Day.

Officer James Sundermann spotted a window smashed out at the Macy's Auto Center at the north end of the shopping center as he was patrolling the area about 5:30 a.m., he said.

He reported the incident and continued checking the shopping center.

At the opposite end of the center officer Sundermann saw a window smashed out at the Montgomery-Ward auto maintenance shop and while checking that out heard the sound of shattering glass inside the building.

Sundermann said he apprehended Dennis Stepanov, 25, of San Francisco, as he tried to flee the building.

The man was charged with burglary and booked into city jail.

Town Hall Meeting In S.B. Supported

San Bruno's Congress for Community Progress, a town hall meeting, is receiving enthusiastic support from the city's residents.

This is evidenced by the impressive initial return of Questionnaries which were mailed out in the city's December water bills. The questionnaires will continue to be mailed out through January so that every resident in the city will have the opportunity to help plan their Congress.

The purpose of the questionnaire is to determine what San Bruno residents feel are areas of priority within their city and what general subjects they would like to hav discussed at the Congress.

The questions have been outlined under headings such as economic development, city services, transportatin, youth and education, recreation and culture, and civic pride and beautification.

"What do you like most about our community?" and "What's your pet peeve about San Bruno?" are a small sample of the questions designed to give the residents a chance not only to "tell it like it is" but to participate first-hand in the future growth of their city.

Fire Arrived Before Santa

It's not a very Merry Christmas for the Bert Gray family of South San Francisco.

Bert, his wife, Socorra, and the couple's 12-year-old son left their home early last night, apparently in anticipation of the arrival of Santa.

At 11:45 p.m. theyr eturned to their home at 623 Baden Avenue, to find the living room engulfed in flames.

Firemen extinguished the blaze, but not before it destroyed the Christmas tree and all the family presents beneath it.

Cause of the fire is still under investigation, a fire department spokesman said.

Damage to contents and the structure is estimated at $7000.

More About Fight Against Noise

spelled out in Federal Aviation Regulation 36.

The overwater approach and landing procedure is to go into effect April 1. At the same time, the Federal Aviation Administration is to have in operation a new instrument landing system to allow all-weather operations overwater.

The "dollars for decibels" landing fee schedule is to go into operation July 1.

Immediate implications for San Francisco and other Bay Area airports are being studied by local aviation officials. The Los Angeles rules raise the question of what can be done to reduce jet noise from the older planes.

Dr. Maurice Garbell, internationally known noise c nsultant for South San Francisco, James K. Carr, airport director for San Francisco, and James Nissen, airport manager for San Jose, all feel that something can be done relatively soon with existing technical knowledge.

"Existing airplanes can be improved," said Dr. Garbell. "It is a matter possibly of public participation in the expense. It is quite expensive."

Carr, president of Airport Operators Council International as well as director of San Francisco airport, said somewhat the same thing:

"In the coming session of Congress, we have to face up to the necessity to either retrofit, reengine, or retire offensive jet aircraft from the airline fleet. We must find a way to do this without undue financial burden on the airlines."

Nissen, a graduate engineer, former test pilot and boss of San Jose's Municipal Airport, is enthusiastic about progress being made in developing a new jet engine that will replace the older "JT-3" which has been the standard for Boeing 707 and Douglas DC-8 aircraft.

A new engine is being developed by General Electric, and tested by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, he said. Tests indicate its use would reduce the area of noise impact around San Jose Airport to about 10 per cent of the area now involve, Nissen said.

Nissen has written U. S. Senator John V. Tunney asking federal support of a program to replace the existing noisier engines with newer power plants which would be much quieter.

"It is not a question of whether noise reduction can be achieved," said Dr. Garbell. "It can. And it can be achieved to an extent where the sounds of surface transportation, hi-fi's and motorcycles become the dominant noises, even in such communities as South San Francisco and Daly City in North San Mateo County."

He described Los Angeles Airport's action as "saying that 12 years of fooling around is enough."

"In the past, some airlines have done a great deal, but in general, the personal concerns of airline pilots have outstripped the responsiveness of the airlines."

Bruno Mtn. Hearing Set

A second public hearing concerning the sphere of influence for San Bruno Mountain will be held by the San Mateo County Local Agency Formation Commission Wednesday, January 17, at 9 a.m. in the Daly City Hall, Commission Chairman Gerald F. Day has announced.

J.C. Johansen Rites Told

A former trustee of the San Mateo Union High and the San Bruno Park school districts, Jorgen Christin (John) Johansen, died Tuesday at a convalescent home at Angwin, Calif., at the age of 67.

He owned and operated the El Camino Creamery from about 1935 until he sold out in 1959. The building and plant, located for 22 years at San Bruno and Huntington Avenues, have been replaced by a bank.

Johansen was elected to the San Bruno Park school board in 1936 and served until 1942. He served on the high school board from 1938 to 1947, covering the years of World War II.

He was active in the Exchange Club and the annual Posy Parade, as well as the San Bruno Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of Francis Drake Lodge F&AM, Peninsula Bodies Scottish Rite and Islam Shrine, and was a 32nd degree Mason.

Johansen was born in Denmark. His parents brought him to this country, first to Fresno and then to Oakland, where he was reared. He graduated from the College of Agriculture at Davis.

On settling in San Bruno in 1932, he first worked for the Marin Dell Co., then started his own dairy, which included a soda fountain, behind the El Camino Theater. He built his own plant in 1947. At its peak, the dairy operated milk routes from Millbrae to Daly City, and manufactured ice cream and yogurt.

He operated a restaurant with his creamery, but when the nearby railroad station and Hotel McCullough plant closed it converted it into a health food store, which his brother Allen now operates on San Mateo Avenue.

He and his family lived at a home he built at 199 Acacia Avenue. About five years ago, they bought a retirement home in the Napa Valley.

He leaves his wife, Erma May; two sons, Eric of San Bruno and Bruce of Los Angeles; his brother, Allen, and three sis-rs, one in Grand Ellen and two n San Francisco.

Services were held Saturday at 11 a.m. at Napa Valley Memorial Garden Chapel in Napa, to be followed by interment in Napa Valley Memorial Garden Cemetery.

GRACE CELESTRES

Grace Celestres, 83, 730 San Antonio Avenue, San Bruno, died Thursday at Peninsula Hospital. She had lived in San Mateo County for 11 years.

Mrs. Celestres was a member of the I.O.O.F., Golden Gate Court 765. She is survived by her husband, William.

Services will be held tomorrow, 11 a.m. at San Bruno Funeral Home, followed by interment at Skylawn Memorial Park.

MARGARET EDWARDS

Private funeral services were held at the Chapel of the Highlands Mortuary Friday afternoon for Margaret Edwards, 85, followed by interment in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

She had lived in San Mateo County for the past six years and in California for 83 years.

A native of Arkansas, she recently resided at 150 Hemlock Avenue in Millbrae.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Maxine Alves of Vallejo.

Prop. 20 Inaction Brings Threat of 'Class' Lawsuit

El Granada resident Joseph J. Murray has declared an intention to file a "class action" lawsuit in Superior Court demanding that the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors appoint one of their members to the Central Coast Regional Commission of the California Coastal Zone Commission, if they do not do so by December 31.

It would be the first lawsuit filed in Northern California under Proposition 20, the "Coastal Initiative," approved by California voters in the November 7 election.

The statutory deadline for the supervisors' appointment is December 31. Murray's attorney, J. William Dawson of Menlo Park, pointed out that the board has failed to comply with the act, even though the Proposition 20 language regarding appointments is mandatory, and states that each member of the commission 'shall' be appointed by that time."

Murray also notes that the Coastal Initiative states: "Any person who violates any provision of this division shall be subject to a civil fine not to exceed $10,000." Concerning the penalty, Murray said: "As a San Mateo County taxpayer, I find the board's failure to act intolerable, and potentially wasteful of the taxpayers' dollars. Above all, I want to insure that the Act will work as intended by the people of California."

In Daly City

Growth Marked Year

By FRANK LAPIERRE

San Mateo County's second largest city — Daly City — continued to show substantial growth in 1972, with construction projects underway in the southern section of the city and the population unofficially topping the 70,000 mark.

Construction projects in the south sector continued to provide housing for families. Developers were again planning apartment complexes in the Serramonte and Westmoor High School areas.

A mobile home park that began two years ago was complete in 1972 easterly of Cypress Hills Golf Course in the foothills of San Bruno Mountain.

Much of the year was spent by various agencies in trying to determine which city would eventually control development of the Crocker Land Company-owned 3,100-acre mountain which borders Daly City on two sides — north and west.

Although studies conducted by an independent firm, at the instruction of the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO), recommend the mountain and the city of Brisbane be annexed to Daly City, opponents of the idea vowed to fight such a move to the "bitter end."

Thus, at year's end the matter is still up in the air.

The elections of April and June seated attorney Paul Hupf on the City Council in a close contest, and Councilman Louis J. Papan in the Assembly from the Twenty-seventh District. Another attorney, Victor Kyrkakis, was named to fill the council vacancy over protests from a handful of supporters for William Schumacher.

Schumacher had ran twice in council campaigns and was edged out in the last race against Hupf by only 56 votes.

Fire Chief Herb Tizmann retired to assume a post with the State Fire Marshal's Office in Sacramento. His long-time assistant, Keith Schrock, was named by the council unanimously to take over the department.

Robert Smith was appointed to the position of Chief Building Inspector for the city, taking over a post long held by now-retired George Hopman.

Hopman's signature appears on inspection cards in most of the 20,000 homes in the newer sections of Daly City. He started as a policeman and went into the engineering field.

A returnee to the city was Raymond Letsinger. Letsinger left three years ago and returned as assistant to City Manager David Rowe.

Included in the long list of new city projects that were either complete in 1972 or started, is the new No. 7 fire station at Gellert Park; a $500,000 storm drain system in the Westlake Estates and Garden Valley sections of the city designed to prevent flooding when completed; resurfacing of city streets; phase one of the multi-million dollar Gellert Park recreational plan on lands donated by developers Fred and Carl Gelbert; Westlake Park clubhouse venture with the Westlake Homeowners Subdivisions Association; joint venture project for a swimming pool at Westmoor High School for public and student use not to exceed a budget of $700,000.

The operating budget decreased due to expenditures of reserves which had accumulated over the last few years. Even with this, taxpayers felt a slight increase of 2.5 cents in the tax rate.

Last minute state and federal legislation may have an effect on the city's financial picture, but the effect will not be known until early 1973, an official City Hall source said.

Plans for possible redevelopment were studied by the council and its appointed 25-member Citizens Advisory Committee throughout the year. Most of the area under study is around the new BART station on Knowles Avenue.

Redevelopment was considered to be the most controversial subject to come before the council in 1972. Several hundred persons, led by attorney Charles Garry, appeared at council sessions to vociferously protest the matter and condemn the Citizens Advisory Committee as "non-representative" of the people actually living in the "target area."

Local school districts held the line on tax increaes in 1972.

In the Jefferson Elementary School District trustees dusted off the years-old idea of building another school in the St. Francis Heights section of the city at a cost of some $1.8 million. The student popualtion citywide was on the decline as the population rate nationwide hit zero growth.

Most officials predict an even brighter 1973 as Governor Reagan's tax cuts for property owners comes into effect along with added financial help for schools. Federal revenue sharing will also aid cities, these officials feel, in expanding many programs.

Drivers under 20 on our nation's streets and highways, reports the National Automobile Club, totaled 9,800,000 in 1970.

RIVERSIDE COUNTY

A series of desert ranges and basins form the eastern half of California's Riverside County.

Three Centenarians Honored

Mary McGraw, Rose Thurston and Teresa Serrano were honored Friday at what probably was their biggest Christmas party.

Two are 100 years old; one will be a Centenarian next March.

All are patients at the Cerro Gardens Convalescent Home in Daly City, which held its annual Yuletide gathering at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

It featured not only the traditional seasonal good tidings, but a program of entertainment and dancing as well, planned by Paul St. Arnaud, the hospital's chef-manager.

The featured entertainment will come from the Benny Smith Academy of Dance, with Don Correia as guest star.

In addition, San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto has donated plaques to be awarded the honorees.

Mrs. McGraw, 100, was reported by Administrator Virgil W. Morrison to be San Mateo County's first school teacher. One of her four living children is Elton McGraw, founder of the First National Bank of Daly City and McGraw Pharmacies. She was born in Half Moon Bay on October 3, 1872.

Teresa Serrano was born in Granada, Spain, on August 31, 1872, immigrating to San Francisco in 1910. Four of her eight children, including Tony Serrano of Pacifica, survive.

Rose Thurston was born on March 25, 1872 at Jersey Channel Island, immigrating to Boston, Mass., in 1891 and to San Francisco in 1929.

Married 62 years, she was widowed in 1957.

Two children, both out of the Bay Area, survive.

Mary's Help Expands

Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City has announced extension of its bilingual, bicultural Outpatient Clinic Program.

In addition to the current weekday hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., the Outpatient Clinic located on the 10th floor will, effective January 2, be open until 10 p.m. on weekdays, providing general medical service for adults and children. On weekends, clinic patients in need of immediate medical services may go to the emergency room.

Medical care is offered on a free or reduced cost basis to persons whose income is insufficient to meet private medical costs but somewhat higher than public assistance standards allow for MediCal, according to a spokesman.

Eligibility is based on a sliding scale of net income with consideration to the number of persons in the family. As a rule of thumb, a family of four with a net income, after taxes, of $650 would be eligible. Patients are asked to bring in the following information to help determine eligibility and fees: social security cards for both husband and wife, MediCal identification card from the County Department of Social Service, two stubs from the most recent payroll check or a statement of earnings from employer, any insurance policies, name and number of union local, and Medicare identification, if over 65 years old.

The Daughters of Charity who operate the hospital have historically cared for the indigent sick in the community. On Guerrero Street over half a century ago, the hospital operated an outpatient clinic for persons in need. When the hospital moved to Daly City in 1965, the clinic system extended its reach from and including San Francisco to North San Mateo County.

Plans are now being developed for a regularly scheduled transportation system. In January, locations for three additional outreach clinics providing similar services will be announced. More information regarding clinic programs may be obtained by calling the hospital. Any group or organization wanting a guest speaker on the subject of the Mary's Help Clinic program or would like a tour of the present facilities may contact Ms. Bette Myerson in the Community Relations Department.

Bicycle Route Signs Go Up in South S.F.

South San Francisco has officially acknowledged that other vehicles use its streets besides cars and trucks.

Bicycles, for instance.

For the past two weeks, Bike Route signs have been going up throughout the city.

These signs, police report, tell bicycle riders the best routes to take through South San Francisco. They are something like truck routes—only they try to keep bicycle riders off of busy highways, like El Camino Real. The signs also try to steer bicycles through rest stops, such as parks.

The new routes are an outgrowth of a project begun by Officer Frank Brown last year when he served as pedestrian-cycle coordinator of the city, under a federal grant from the Office of Bicycle Safety. In that capacity, he traveled from school to school talking up safety. He got together with officials from other city departments such as streets, parks and recreation, and planning and began working out the bicycle routes.

Such routes have been worked out by neighboring cities. Part of South San Francisco's job was to work out safe routes to connect with routes from San Bruno and Daly City.

South San Francisco's traffic situation is now in a state where no exclusive lanes are available for bikes, and no funds are available for exclusive roads. Also lacking are maps of the new routes, although they are available for viewing at City Hall.

S.S.F. Arson Bail Reduced

Preston Ray Griff, charged with arson in a $126,000 South San Francisco fire, was granted his request in part, yesterday for a reduction in bail. He was still in San Mateo County Jail today, however.

South San Francisco Municipal Court Judge Charles Becker reduced bail from $400,000 cash to $50,000. Griff had asked, however, for a reduction to $5000.

The 31-year-old San Francisco businessman was arraigned on the charge of arson. His case was continued to January 5 for plea.

He is accused in connection with the June 27 fire that destroyed the E&J Upholstery manufacturing plant at 132 Starlight Avenue. He owns an upholstery company in San Francisco, firemen say.

County Officials Insist:

S.F. Must Pay the Security Bill

Hiring of 60 to 80 new deputy sheriffs to provide anti-skyjacking security at San Francisco International Airport will be done only when San Mateo County is assured someone else is paying the bill.

San Mateo County officials agreed on that yesterday after airport officials announced the day before that it will cost $1,300,000 to $1,800,000 a year for the new officers.

Airports director James K. Carr said he would be negotiating with San Mateo County Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore, to provide the new security.

He said he was asking this service of Whitmore because the sheriff had objected to deputizing so many new airport security policemen.

Assistant Sheriff Eugene E. Stewart said today that the sheriff has decided that since he assumes the legal responsibility he will have people there who he supervises and controls.

Stewart said he has met with Carr and other airport officials, representatives of the White House, Department of Transportation and the Federal Aviation Administration.

The discussions centered on the meaning of amended federal aviation regulations, and problems of recruitment and training of personnel, he said.

"Any arrangement will be based on a contract between this county and San Francisco," he said.

"The officers will be supplied by San Mateo County at no cost to county taxpayers," Stewart added.

County manager M. D. Tarshes said San Mateo County probably will be willing to assist, but that any plan must be approved by the Board of Supervisors. Before they can act, the county must have a formal proposal from San Francisco.

"They are going to have to rely upon us for law enforcement staff," he said.

Tarshes said the FAA is going to be under -pressure from around the country to extend the deadlines.

Any participation from San Mateo County will be only on the basis that San Francisco pay the cost, Tarshes said.

District attorney Keith C. Sorenson said, "This is probably the best solution to the problem, because it assures that training standards will be met. Officers involved in arrest, search and seizure would apply the same standards as others in the county.

"Better arrests and investigations would be assured," Sorenson said. "People with police powers and authority should be supervised by the head of the police enforcement agency.

"This particular type of law enforcement support for passenger screening is a sensitive area.

Girl Scouting

3 AWARD OF MERIT of the National Safety Council was presented to the Daly City Girl Scout Association by Mr. Iver Larson, NSC Executive Vice President at the recent December meeting of the association. Accepting the award, Mrs. Margaret Connolly, association chairman, thanked Mr. Larson for his representation at the national convention in Chicago.

One of only three presented nationally to youth agencies, it involved the full cooperation of the Police Explorers, a division of Explorer Scouts, a co-educational group sponsored locally by the Daly City Police Dept. represented at the presentation by Lt. Phillip LaBruzzi and the Lions Club, and the National Auto Association which donated the pamphlets.

The Explorers licensed the bikes which the Girl Scouts put through their Road-E-O, a project they have initiated for five years.

CADETTE TROOP 716 recently carolled at Mary's Help Hospital singing traditional songs for an evening of patient celebration. Led by Mmes. Nancy Dahlberg, the girls are of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades. Cadette Scouting is open to all girls in this age bracket.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Since we are all recovering from the rush and hurry of Christmas, it seems a good day to suggest an entree that's tasty, easy to make and attractive too. Combining ground beef with a spaghetti sauce mix and topped with biscuits filled with a flavorful cheese mixture.

BEEF 'N BISCUIT BAKE

1 pound ground beef
6-ounce can tomato paste or sauce
1 Tablespoon oil
1 package (1-oz.) Spaghetti Sauce Seasoning Mix
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon each pepper and garlic powder
1 Tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (8-oz.) Refrigerated Buttermilk or Country Style Biscuits
Grated Parmesan cheese
Oven 400 Degrees 5 to 6 servings

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In large fry pan, brown the one pound beef, drain. Add the six ounces tomato paste, one tablespoon oil and spaghetti sauce seasoning mix and amount of water directed on mix package. Bring to boil. Add the fourth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon each pepper and garlic powder, one Tablespoon butter; simmer 10 to 20 minutes according to seasoning mix directions.

Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; pat or roll each to a 4-inch circle. Prepare filling.

FILLING

1½ cups shredded Mozzarella cheese
½ cup Ricotta or cottage cheese
1 tablespoon parsley
½ teaspoon chopped chives
½ teaspoon basil

In small bowl combine the one and one-half cups Mozzarella cheese, one-half cup Ricotta cheese, one tablespoon parsley, one-half teaspoon each chopped chives and basil.

Place about two tablespoons cheese filling in each 4-inch biscuit. Fold circle in half; seal edges well. Pour half the hot meat mixture into ungreased 13x9-inch baking dish. Top with filled biscuits. Pour remaining meat mixture over biscuits. Sprinkle generously with Parmesan cheese. Bake 400 degrees for 15 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Refrigerate leftovers.

With all the fancy baking and cooking we've done in the past month food that is simple to prepare and serve has appeal.

BAVARIAN BEEF SANDWICHES

1 pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup green pepper
1 Tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (10¾ ounces) beef gravy
2 cups shredded cabbage
6 round hard rolls, split and toasted
¼ cup shredded Cheddar cheese

In skillet brown the pound beef and cook the one-half cup onion and one-fourth cup green pepper in the one tablespoon butter until tender. Stir in the gravy and two cups cabbage. Cook over medium heat for 10 minutes. Spoon about one-half mixture on bottom half of each roll; top with cheese. Cover with top half of roll. Makes 6 sandwiches.

This year's program under the direction of Miss Barbara Whalen celebrated Christmas in many different lands. The children wearing costumes of countries around the world first gave a fashion show. An ter instrumental prelude of flutes, trumpets, violins and clarinets started off the celebration. Then each class sang a different Christmas carol from Mexico, Holland, England, Austria and Germany.

Directly after the program, the P-TA held its annual bake sale in the new Learning Cen-

Goodbye 1972! Where did the time go? From fashion shows to Christmas boutiques the days seemed to pass by with considerable — and unseemly — speed. Let's hope 1973 is a good and happy year for all and perchance a year when life assumes a less harried aspect.

Regardless of your sorrow or delight at the demise of 1972, Sunday evening will be the time to joyfully welcome the new year and many Westlake people would be hard pressed to think of a more delightful place to celebrate the advent of 1973 than with the Westlake Catholic Men and Women at their annual New Year's Eve party in the parish hall on Elmwood Drive.

Mrs. Donald Bechtel, the general chairman of the party, reports that the decorations have been completed and the hall will have a most festive appearance for the gala event and Tony La Stella and Charles Santuccio, who are in charge of the liquid refreshments, assure all prospective guests that they will be delighted to serve one and all.

Reservation will be available through 6 p.m. this evening, according to Mrs. James McCann, publicity chairman for the Westlake Catholic Women, and those wishing to join in the merrymaking are asked to call Mrs. Robert Rickert at once for reservations. Mrs. Rickert can be reached at 756-9648, or ticket seekers may call Mrs. Peter Balestrieri, 755-8290 for reservations.

MEMBERS OF Holy Angels Women's Guild are asked to help make the coming year a safe one for their families and their homes by learning the precautions you need to take to prevent burglary.

Mrs. Alfred Abrahamshon, social director for the Holy Angels guild has announced that Lt. Philip La Bruzzo of the Daly City Police will discuss ways to burglar-proof your home at the January 3 meeting. Lt. La Bruzzo and two other officers will demonstrate locks and bolts and answer questions during the session which will get under way at 8 p.m. A film, "The Door Was Locked," will be screened during the evening. The gathering will be in the parish hall.

Mrs. John Lagomarsino, publicity chairman, stressed that the guild officers and the representatives of the police force are hopeful that many husbands will attend with their wives so that the prevention of a home burglary can be a family project.

MR. AND MRS. Murray H. Freedman and their guests from Kenya, Africa, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown, joined with localites Mr. and Mrs. William Kennaugh, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Ariani and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greenwood to fete the holiday season at the Presbyterian Medical Center's party held in the Great American Music Hall earlier this month.

The event was made even more festive with the announcement of the naming of Roe Ariani as chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Daly City.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, formerly of Mill Valley, have returned to Kenya for the wedding of their daughter, but plan to visit the area again in the near future.

DID YOU KNOW that Mary's Help Hospital Guild is planning to expand the tour program for school children and other interested groups?

Tours will be one hour or slightly less in length and will be available for groups making arrangements with Mrs. Belte Myerson, director of community relations at the hospital.

CAN YOU THINK of a better way to celebrate 25 years of marriage than with a junket to the Hawaiian Islands? Well, neither could Dr. and Mrs. Louis Minkin who observed the occasion in just that manner.

CHRISTMAS was reunion time for the John Madrosen family. The senior Madrosens trekked north to spend the holiday with John Jr. and his family in Washington, and their younger son, Clark, currently stationed with the Air Force in the Hawaiian Islands, met the family in the north for a few days of visiting.

THAT WRAPS UP Datebook for 1972. Have a Happy New Year's Eve, drive carefully, stay well, and I'll be waiting to write about you and your activities in 1973!

Yule Party by DC Soccer Club

The Westlake International Soccer Club held its first annual Christmas Party at St. Andrews Center on December 10.

DC Garden Club Sets '73 Meet

The Daly City Garden Club will hold their first meeting of 1973 on January 2, 8 p.m. in the Coral Room of the War Memorial Community Center, 144 Hillside Boulevard.

Program for this meeting will be "Use of Native Flora in Your Garden." The speaker will be Mrs. Donald R. George, who is a Master Flower Show Judge and a Chairman for World Gardening, California Garden Clubs, Inc.

Two Jailed In Woodside Family Fight

An objection to loud music in the early morning resulted in a fracas in a Woodside home Sunday in which three members of a family were beaten and two others arrested, the sheriff's office reports.

Deputies Rod Eagan and Ray Richardson said the difficulties apparently started about 4 a.m. at the home of Jene McVay, 715 Canada Road, a gamekeeper, when Mrs. Jacqueline McVay, 41, asked her son, Clifton, 18, a sailor home on leave, and her nephew, David Valdez, 23, a teamster, of San Leandro, to turn down the music from a record player so she could get some sleep.

An argument started, the deputies reported, and ended with Mrs. McVay, her husband, 42, and their daughter, Cynthia, 19, being beaten by young McVay and Valdez. The latter egedly pounded McVay's head against a wall.

Clifton McVay was arrested at the scene on charges of assault and battery, and Valdez was later apprehended by the highway patrol in Hayward. He was returned to Redwood City and booked at County Jail on charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

Drunk Driver Raps for 74

Drunk driving arrests and minor injury accidents made this one of the worst Christmas weekends in recent memory, police in some San Mateo County cities report.

A total of 74 persons were booked at County Jail on charges of drunk driving alone.

The California Highway Patrol has augmented forces covering freeways and highways and keeping a particular look out for drunken drivers in an effort to prevent accidents.

The city of San Mateo added another half dozen drunken driving arrests to the county total.

In San Mateo alone since Friday evening 34 accidents were listed by the traffic bureau. Most were minor.

Big Theft At Airport

Savi Rizkalla, 19-year-old Culver City salesman, saw his suitcase containing $2735 worth of personal possessions disappear from a restroom in the Central Terminal at San Francisco International Airport Saturday, but was unable to do anything about it, Sheriff's Deputy Michael Peck reports.

Rizkalla told the deputy he sat the suitcase down in the restroom while he entered one of the stalls. Within a few moments he saw someone wearing a brown raincoat and black shoes lift the suitcase, containing a $1500 ring, a $500 ring, clothing, a $300 camera, and his Egyptian passport, and depart, the victim related.

Peck reported that "being unable to exit the stall immediately, the victim could do nothing about the situation."

S.M. Reserve Takes Life

James Moore, 29, a sporting goods salesman and a reserve policeman with the San Mateo police Department, shot and killed himself in his Belmont home Monday night, Belmont police report.

According to officers, Moore and his wife, Vickie, were discussing the possibility of divorce when he walked into the den about 10:15 p.m., took his .38-caliber revolver, placed the barrel under his chin and pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Moore ran screaming from the home at 2808 Hallmark Drive, attracting the attention of a neighbor, who called police.

Thief Gets Auto Parts

A window-smashing burglar escaped with a quantity of car parts in SanMateo Monday night.

About 8 o'clock a seven-foot plate glass display window of the BAP GEON, foreign car parts house, was smashed with an unknown object. Nearly $400 worth of engine accessories was stolen, reported investigating Police Officer Larry Weissel. The store is located at 59 West Forty-third Avenue.

Letting People Ramble On...

WHY DO I keep thinking of things like "Nero fiddled while Rome burned" when I read of President Nixon dancing in Florida with a young girl while my old B-52 outfit pounds the Hell out of North Vietnam. But let's face it, folks. The purpose of the Vietnam thing is to keep the dread Viet Cong off our streets. And quite honestly it must be working. I haven't seen one "Cong" anywhere in the North County.

NO, BUT SERIOUSLY folks let's get back on the local trail.

HERE WE ARE in Daly City, the council chambers to be exact. The multi-million dollar structure, once described by Tom Callan as "a mausoleum," now houses not only the City Fathers, but various other groups including the high school trustees and the elementary school trustees.

There have been some rather vocal groups of late taking on both the City Council and the JESD trustees on issues bugging them. For all its worth (probably very little) the city lets most folks ramble on, regardless what they say. One attorney, who we shall call Charles Garry because that's his name, even called Mayor Bud Lycett a "big bag of wind." The mayor choked, turned red and turned the other cheek.

NOW WE LOOK at the elementary school board, chaired by Al Collett or Edward Tomasello in recent months. First, this august body, whose hearts often appear as cold as December, tried to completely muzzle the public voice by introducing an outrageous policy for meetings (which was shot down in part by the DA) and second, is partly responsible for bringing Orwell's 1984 a little closer by supporting the installation of hidden TV cameras in the chamber.

Behind those innocent appearing radio "speakers" on two walls of the chamber are TV eyes, folks. They are put there, if you can believe this, for the protection of the City Hall. We are told no one is actually "taped" for future reference. Not so long ago I was also told about the "Tooth Fairy." I don't believe either story.

NOW THAT I've messed up my warm relationship with the Powers-that-be in Daly City by opening this little can of worms we want to quickly add these facts: At a council meeting in D.C. the audience is ASKED after each matter if anyone wants to speak on a subject. There is also a place on the agenda where the public is INVITED TO SPEAK THEIR MIND. And we have to hand it to the council — they do sit there and take it.

On the other hand, the JESD board, which has killed off public attendance at meetings even though they spend far more tax money than any other agency in local government, requires a person to fill out a slip before the meeting; they must confine their discussion to only those things the trustees feel is relevant to an item under discussion, and; there is NO public forum. If they dare violate this picture of democracy in action they are gaveled to silence.

Pity the poor person who goes on talking after he is ordered to shut up. They undoubtedly will be thrown out of THEIR City Hall by THEIR elected officials.

QUESTION: Do we elect REPRESENTATIVES or KINGS? Let's hope this changes in the New Year. Let's also note this county was founded on the principles of Free Speech — whether some members of the elementary school district board believe that or not.

STILL ON THE political path — How come Daly City, which is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on a new fire station next to Gellert Park doesn't know how to spell councilman Paul HUPF's name on the project signboard? (It's not spelled Huff fellas.) And why is Assemblyman-Elect Lou Papan's name still on the same sign and not Victor Kyriakis"? I gotta bagful of howcums, but I'm not gonna blow 'em all in this one column.

SPEAKING OF KYRIAKIS (you weren't, I was)—A first for Vic and Stella. Born December 19, a daughter at French Hospital, 6 pounds, 12 ounces. Name? Tina Victoria. Mother and daughter seem to be doing well. Dad is popping buttons.

CAN'T SEEM TO FIND out any more about that audit in the Jefferson Elementary School District, the one that's "welcomed" by superintendent Frank Greenwood, according to reports.

But we can say this: Those fellows weren't invited by the JESD staff. The auditors report directly to the State's Attorney General, with sidetrips to County School Supt. Dr. J. Russell Kent, DA Keith Sorenson and (perhaps) The Shadow.

IT WAS PARTY TIME all last week, and most of this week, with every office that IS an office toasting the year's accomplishments and chomping at the bit readying for 1973. Two of the finest we went to were the North County Sanitation District at the Skyliner and the Daly City Scavenger lunch at the dump. Perhaps it's because we deal in both these agencies' products that we enjoyed ourselves so much.

Hosting the NSMCSD was Supervisor Jim Fitzgerald and Councilmen Tony Giamonna and Bud Lycett. The reason we mention this threesome is because they are also directors of the district.

Scavenger boss Al Sereni hosted the dump lunch. Now, before you all laugh and slap the lid of your garbage pail in delight, there were some mighty prominent people breaking leftovers with me.

Yesireebob, I spotted Judges Mel Cohn, W. Howard Hartley, Frank Blum, Charles Becker and Walt Capaccioli, councilmen, business leaders and civic workers. Not to mention The Great Guys who run the dump — no offense fellas!

MY PLEDGE for 1973 — To continue in this space to write: "All the news without fear or favor." Have a sober New Year. If you get too drunk and want to sober up quickly, remember, coffee isn't the answer.

Simply pull out your last tax due form and take a look at what you owe the County School System.

'Term Papers to Be Seen, Not Read'

A S.S.F. Teacher's New Method

Is the day of the college term paper near an end?

"Not unless words go out of style," says a young instructor at the University of San Francisco.

But Dick Nicolopulos offered his class an alternative this fall. The 27 students took a course called Ethnic Expression Through Multimedia.

For them the alternative says more than a paper could, to people inside USF. And outside. It has said something already to the students involved.

The McLuhan effect?

"Side effect, yes, but it does add some flavor," says Nicolopulos, a South San Francisco resident, just turned 22. He is the source of some priesting interest on a Catholic Jesuit campus where the medium has always been a good part of the message. He is the son of veteran South San Francisco police sergeant Gus Nicolopulos.

Hired this fall as a lecturer in the Ethnic Studies Program, he told his class at the start that his title would not apply to his mission or theirs.

There would be only one opening lecture. There would be instruction, advice, supervision, and evaluation as they learned to synchronize sight with sound — slides, films, tapes, and records — and emerge with a valid comment about ethnic issues. On three screens.

No term papers. The images they projected, the sound they fed into speakers, would say it for them.

Divided into four groups, the students were set to work researching the topics they had talked over and agreed upon:

(1) Native Americans, their historic and present plight, and the options they face;

(2) The "sweatshops" of Chinatown, San Francisco;

(3) The job outlook for the black community;

(4) La Raza relations at USF.

With tape recorders and cameras they tracked down fact, fiction, and opinion in alleys, doorways, and offices, behind the city's tourist facades, on street corners in the Fillmore, in front rooms and backyards. They talked to politicians, businessmen, state functionaries, and immigrants.

And they brought it all back to USF to forge into audiovisual combinations that would make sense. For one group it took three weeks to choose and mask 240 color transparencies.

A smooth course?

"It's new, so it couldn't be, and it has not been," Nicolopulos says.

"In the sweatshops project, they very nearly never got off the ground.

"In a collective effort you have to relate well to each other. Two of them were so much at odds it came to tears at one point."

John and Judy—not their names—come from Chinatown, speak Chinese, are of middle-class families "in the business," that is, owners of the kind of sewing factories where "minimum wage" is one of those foolish Occidental terms that does not square with Oriental reality.

Just about there the similarity between them ends. Judy could find no fault with a system that worked for her people. John kept the ship books for his father, he says, and pulled out when he could no longer stomach what his eyes told him.

Out of dislike and mistrust came a working agreement that he group and its project took precedence.

"They learned something about themselves," Nicolopulos feels, "and about shared responsibility in a good cause." The Chinese project proved to be one of the better presentations.

The narrative sticks to facts, not emotional reaction, underscoring visuals that really tell the story of a deplorable human condition. But the last spoken line is worth quoting:

"The more we bring out injustice, in society, the more justice will be served."

In the La Raza effort, another kind of frustration surfaced. It bears on one of Nicolopulos' objectives in turning his class loose on "term papers" meant to be watched and heard, not read.

He sees the results as documentary commodities with an afterlife, something the standard written assignment does not have. He sees them as useful educational resources for USF students and faculty for a year or two at least, and he has word from public school officials that a big market exists for multimedia teaching tools with an ethnic focus.

A teacher at Lick-Wilmerding High School in San Francisco has invited Nicolopulos to give a demonstration.

La Raza adherents on the Jesuit campus are assuming a militant stance they have not held in years past. Some academic skins have been rubbed raw with charges that too few Spanish-surnamed students are being recruited.

How do you externalize, in multimedia, an internal problem?

"It's a tough one," the instructor admits, "but the La Raza group, like the others, took an honest, factual approach. Chicano and Latino students are often disoriented when they make the move from high school to college.

"The cultural adjustment can be hard. The presentation brings that out — and what's being done about it, especially through Ethnic Studies Program."

Posed with a real nut to crack, the group attacked it with utter seriousness. Nicolopulos notes:

"Their show could help defuse a situation that exists right outside these doors," he says.

S.F. Supervisor Terry Francois, when apprised of the multimedia analysis of jobs for blacks, was among those who offered encouragement and cooperation. The black attorney steered the students to sources of information, advised them on approaches, was enthusiastic about the potential audience for such a show.

The end result is more than a statement about racism and discrimination. It deals not only with jobs available now, but with jobs that will be available — for black applicants who prepare themselves educationally.

And here is McLuhan again. While learning multimedia techniques, black students have come to realize the career opportunities staring them right in the face.

Says their teacher: "Audiovisual media capabilities are due for explosive growth. We're just at the bottom of the hill now, starting up."

Canadian and American insights thread the approach to the future of America's Indians. Sister Louise Roy — Louise to the rest of her group — is French-Canadian, from Montreal, a member of the Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception.

"I think Canada is ahead of the U.S. in providing for Indian housing and health, it asking for Indian input," she remarks, "but our project is about America not Canada."

With candor, it states the problem and does not answer it.

Chris Bacher, of Sonoma, has relatives on a Pomo reservation in Lake County. His research included conversations with an uncle there.

"The government doesn't have a solution, and neither do we," he notes.

Solution to what? "To the conflict that confronts these people," says Bob Dei Rossi, from San Carlos.

"Do they move toward assimilation into a society that's contrary to their ancestral beliefs, or do they die out in reservations while preserving the dwindling remains of their own culture?

"Have we offered them freedom to express themselves or just freedom to entertain white men?"

Out of these "term papers," Nicolopulos hopes, will emerge the start of a resource center whose stock will grow and be replenished with the product of future classes.

He is applying for a federal grant needed to expand current multimedia capabilities at USF.

"Now that we're moving into post-linear education, with devices that expand our sensual capacity to acquire knowledge, to store and use it, only our imagination limits the possible applications," he says.

At Serra High School in San Mateo, Nicolopulos did his first experimenting with MM. Counseling Upward Bound students in 1970 at USF — a program to find and develop college potential in unmotivated teen-agers — confirmed his commitment and set him on the ethnic track.

"It was my first exposure to nonwhite minority groups," he says. "It made me change some of my attitudes, behavior, and values. I started testing designs for accelerating their learning, and multimedia offered a lot of possibilities."

Encouragement came in 1971 when three "bridge" students from the year before, given approval to try an early transition to college, took and passed their summer session courses at USF.

Nicolopulos has put together four multimedia presentations of his own. The first was on African art, the next two, on the concepts of life and death and the rituals of religious belief, for the USF philosophy and theology departments respectively.

Number four, "The Lawman's Life," was shown November 10 in South San Francisco, at a conference of the organization that requested, paid for, and praised it, the California Association of Police Trainees.

Enthused by his ideas, the university's Ethnic Studies faculty unanimously invited him to join the program this fall, as its first nonminority member.

In teaching his students to respect their own individualities, to adjust to the give-and-take of collective effort, to develop creativity based on the rigors of painstaking research, the 22 year-old has earned unspoken peer acceptance from the four groups.

Peer? Right.

Nicolopulos is still a USF undergrad himself, six months away from his bachelor's degree with a major in history, a minor in ethnic studies. Next fall he plans to start on a master's in instructional technology at California State University, San Jose.

Now You See It, Now You...

How to have regional government without appearing to have regional government — that is the story of the San Francisco Bay Area and of its proliferation of super governments.

Think about it. In each of the past three years, a new special purpose agency for the Bay Area has exuded from the intellectual swamps. Caught in a cross fire of conflicting philosophies and entrenched powers, those seeking national solution to area wide problems have had to accept a jerry built system that is at once ineffective, nonrepresentative, and in some cases plain old incompetent.

Through establishment of agencies that have no constituency, the government of the Bay Area is gradually being taken away from its people. Because the job is being done piece by piece and year by year the people (who pay insufficient attention to their affairs in any event) don't realize what has happened to them and their government. Meanwhile the "new thing" grows and will continue to do so until it may be impossible to control.

The average citizen hasn't noticed the expanding web of super governments. He is unaware that he is already surrounded by such agencies and that his life is profoundly affected by a kind of government that couldn't care less about him. Consider the list:

Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC)

Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG)

Bay Area Sewer Services Agency (BASSA)

Bay Area Pollution Control District

San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC)

Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART)

Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District

North Central and Central Coastal Zone Conservation Commission

The state legislature is, of course deeply involved in this misshapen web of power and politics. The fault, however, is not entirely legislative. The Bridge District originated with citizen action and a pellbcite in several counties. BART required initial public approval. The new coastal commissions arise from a state wide initiative.

Regardless of the method of beginning, these bodies have one outstanding feature in common. Those in charge are not elected to their positions of power; nor is the entire membership appointed by one responsible public official.

The method of selection of such boards and commissions is diverse. Mayors, Boards of Supervisors and selection committees share the appointive power. In some cases the Governor may appoint a few members. Some memberships, believe it or not, are designated by other agencies of similar nature. In many cases, the appointing power, e.g. a committee of mayors, may find its own membership entirely changed long before the term of an appointee is run its course.

Several sops to public concern have been used to camouflage the undemocratic nature of these bodies. A growing trend is toward the compulsory appointment of elected public officials to such positions. On the face of things, this is an improvement, but such board members are not elected to that particular position. Their public constituency is far more interested in their behavior as a mayor, councilman, or supervisor than as, say, a commissioner of sewers. These men and women, moreover, have little time to give to such subsidiary duties. The vast majority of local elected officials in the Bay Area are already part time public servants. A new and remote responsibility is not likely to capture sufficient time and attention.

Recently ABAG, after months of study, agreed to initiate a public forum so that citizens may have some kind of voice in Bay Area affairs. Whether such gatherings will have any usefulness remains to be seen. The right to be heard, in a dressed up meeting held for the purpose of steam letting, cannot be confused with political power.

For what we have managed to create is a new kind of government that has, in its many forms, vast and growing power. All of these bodies are using money raised by taxes, local, state, or federal. Many have been beneficiaries of large federal grants. What is going on is, without doubt, taxation without representation, and once upon a time this was thought to be bad practice indeed.

Books For All

1972 has been the International Book Year with the slogan "Books for All." As the year draws to a close many nations have formulated plans to continue the book year into 1973.

Therefore we shall be reviewing the words of the charter that was adopted for 1972:

1. Everyone has the right to read.
2. Books are essential to education.
3. Society has a special obligation to establish the conditions in which authors can exercise their creative role.
4. A sound publishing industry is essential to national development.
5. Book manufacturing facilities are necessary to the development of publishing.
6. Booksellers provide a fundamental service as a link between publishers and the reading public.
7. Libraries are national resources for the transfer of information and knowledge, for the enjoyment of wisdom and beauty.
8. Documentation serves books by preserving and making available essential background material.
9. The free flow of books between countries is an essential supplement to national supplies and promotes international understanding.
10. Books serve international understanding and peaceful cooperation.

Accepting this charter President issued a proclamation asserting that "books and libraries are among mankind's greatest sources of enlightenment. They contain the cultural inheritance of our forefathers and the core of our educational system."

Leading the City of Daly City in marking International Book Year the Daly City officials and the officers of the Public Library imbarked on an outreach project that is designed to make books available to persons who for health, or age or some other reason cannot visit a branch of the public library.

Edward Cavallini was named Community Service Librarian and charged with coordinating the entire program. Meanwhile volunteers, most of them from Friends of the Daly City Library, were recruited to work with Mr. Cavallini in getting books to people.

As a member of the Peninsula Library Association the Daly City Public Library took part in a federally financed program that provided motion pictures for institutions where aged people reside. Records show that as many as 100 people attend some of the shows.

To further provide books for persons whose health prevents them from reading ordinary materials, the Daly City Host Lions Club provided the funding necessary to place in the Daly City Public Library a library for the near sighted. This library is presently housed in the Westlake Branch of the Library and is widely used.

During international Book Material an authority with UNESCO pointed out that reading communicates to the human mind more than any other form of communication.

Funds Voted for Big Airport Fill Project

Plans to fill San Francisco International Airport's 120-acre seaplane harbor will be prepared under terms of a $358,000 contract approved Dec. 19 by the city's Airports Commission.

Airports Director James K. Carr said the planning job requires a great deal more than just preparing to fill the harbor, as approved by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission in 1968.

He said the job will require extension and alteration of the airport's north-end storm drain lines, replacing a Coast Guard crash boat shelter and pier, replacing a jet fuel barge dock, preparation of environmental impact studies, engineering of the bay bottom fill, and selection of a site for the fill material.

The contract was assigned to Cooper, Clark and Associates, with Wilsey & Ham of Foster City as a prime sub-contractor.

Airport Engineer Robert Lee said work could begin on the project in 1974. He said the job is included in the airport's overall master development plan.

In the past, the site has been suggested as a possible location or an air cargo center, but no current plans for its use were announced.

Airport commissioners also discussed preliminary plans for airport entry landscaping estimated to cost $600,000. They withheld action on the plans, pending further information.

Commissioners gave the go-ahead to preliminary planning for a $3,400,000 control tower to be built atop the airport parking garage. The tower would reach 200 feet into the sky, Carr said, and allow air traffic controllers an unobstructed view of all aircraft on the field, at all times.

"The FAA usually builds the control tower," said Carr, "but they decided, and we decided, the best place for it was in the center of the parking garage," and the airport is now planning expansion of that garage.

Planning, as approved yesterday, will tie in the airport tower construction with the airport garage expansion work.

Happy Season for 'Trash-Can Baby'

By JACK BIK

Baby Jane Doe—who was found barely breathing, in a trash can October 21 — spent her first Christmas in the home of "loving foster parents," according to County Adoption Supervisor Fern Warrington.

The baby, weighing five pounds, three ounces, had been found in the restroom of El Rancho Drive-in Theater in South San Francisco, minutes after it was born. South San Francisco police officers rushed the baby in a squad car to Mary's Help Hospital where her life was saved.

The baby is now healthy and well with no trace of the congenital illness with which it was born.

South San Francisco police are still running down leads to the identity of the mother. Until they declare the case closed, the baby cannot be legally adopted.

An employe of the theater had told police that as the theater was closing up, he went to clean the ladies' restroom and found it occupied. He heard a car impatiently honking, right outside the snack bar. He then saw a lone woman leaving. She was white, about 25, five-foot three, chubby, with brown shoulder length curly hair, Scottish plaid thigh-length coat and brown pants.

Until the case is settled, the baby's future remains in limbo.

Miss Warrington anticipates little difficulty in placing the child once police mark the case closed. There are now more adoptive parents than children, and the problem is in finding the best parents for the child.

"Many adoptive parents," she said, "are resigned to the possibility of waiting a long time."

The baby has been given a new name, and she will be given still another name, her permanent one, when her adoption becomes final.

Miss Warrington gave high praise to those few local couples who volunteer to be foster parents to an infant whom they care for day and night, become attached to, love it as their own child—and then give it up to permanent parents.

"The gift of love," she noted, "is the greatest gift one can give this season."

S.S.F. Firemen Kept Busy With Three Fires

It was a busy shift for South San Francisco firemen on Dec. 20 as they were called out to fight three different fires.

At 5 a.m., fire broke out from an undetermined cause in the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jerez, at 705A Olive Ave., causing "high" damage to room and contents, according to firemen. Mrs. Jerez fell while fleeing the fire, injuring her leg. She was taken to Chope Community Hospital for treatment.

At 10 p.m. fire broke out in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Morales, 526 Pine Terrace, from a short in the Christmas tree lights. According to firemen, a son, George, tried slapping the fire and the father threw a quilted bedspread over the tree, but the flames spread through the living room. The father finally grabbed a garden hose.

Millbrae Council Approves Weed Abatement Program

They argued about weeds, revenue sharing, and the price to charge for hooking up a home to the city's water system, last week at the Millbrae City Council meeting.

The councilmen approved a weed abatement program slightly modified from that requested by Fire Inspector Edward Williams, when one citizen objected to certain weed-killing work in the Bayside Manor area, and after one city councilman objected to disturbing the natural bird food growing in the Millbrae Spur property.

"This is supposed to be a wild area," said Councilman Barney Spera, "not a wasteland. I'm very much a bird lover, and I'll have to vote no."

Councilman Art Lepore suggested that perhaps discing could reduce "some of the vehicular traffic in that area."

Councilman William Glang said: "We have had fires in that area, and I would prefer to see the lives of our citizens saved, at the expense, perhaps, of some birds."

The weed abatement plan was approved 4-0, with Spera voting "no."

Mayor Bernard Esser appointed Lepore and City Administrator Richard Watson to prepare a "position paper" on revenue sharing, after Watson and Lepore pointed out some of the problems with the existing federal law.

"I'm very disturbed," said Watson, "to find that some cities with less population than Millbrae got three times as much, per capita."

Millbrae is one of five cities in the state that got an allotment of less than the supposed $3.70 per capita minimum, he said.

"This is because of the tax rate," he said. Millbrae has one of the lowest tax rates on the Peninsula. Foster City, he noted, with one of the highest tax rates of any peninsula community, got far more federal money than Millbrae's $38,000 allotment.

"That is one of the problems," Lepore said. "Another thing public officials ought to be looking at is the whole criteria, and what this is going to do to us as a city."

Councilmen took no action on a proposed change in the water system hook-up charge, but agreed to consider introducing such an ordinance at their January 2 meeting.

Mayor Esser insisted on a "rationale" explaining why the city now charges $60 per hook-up, and why that should be changed to $30 per dwelling unit in multiple dwellings, as proposed by staff.

Councilman Harold Purpus said the $60 fee had derived rom a similar fee paid by Capuchino area homeowners when Millbrae was incorporated and took over that local water system, in 1958. Staff members agreed to provide further analysis.

The council set a January 11 public hearing and special meeting, at the city recreation center, to discuss possible ways to acquire the 22 acres of vacant land owned by the Archdiocese of San Francisco near St. Dunstan's Church.

They set a February 6 public hearing for plans to abandon waterline easements in Alpha Land's Millbrae Heights condominium project;

Scheduled a January 16 hearing on proposed changes to the city's sign laws;

Agreed to a joint meeting with the Planning Commission in January, if a date can be worked out;

Decided to ask representatives of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District to appear January 2 to explain BART's plans for a train line through the city and a passenger station in Millbrae;

Approved removal of a blockhouse at the Bay Cities Building Materials company yard, to allow widening of Millbrae Avenue;

Scheduled an executive session to discuss legal problems with a contract with Freeman-Sondgroth paving company;

Heard a report that progress is being made in negotiations with Community Tele-Communications company on installing cable-television service in the city;

Discussed what might be done to encourage renewed activity in a local recycling effort; and Accepted a Beautification Commission resignation by college student Robert Lopez, who is studying at University of California at Riverside.

New Car Expense Plan Wins Okay

Members of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors now have the option of receiving $175 a month from the county for local automobile travel expenses.

The board agreed Dec. 19 to authorize the allowance as an alternative to use of a county car or compensation of $40 a month and eight cents a mile reimbursement for county business.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes, who recommended the new travel expense proposal, said the major reason is that the board members (as well as some other top county officials who may be authorized for inclusion in the plan) are frequently required to intermix business and personal driving in order to effectively perform their duties.

"It is difficult to accurately account for business miles on a personal car, or for personal miles on a county car in these instances," Tarshes reported.

As a consequence, he said, it has been next to impossible to develop an acceptable reimbursement method other than a flat rate that does not require precise accounting for personal mileage—"an accounting that is not feasible when personal and official uses are intermixed on the same trip."

Tarshes said he feels that the $175 rate is fair in that it is nearly the same as the cost of a county car driven 15,000 miles a year and is $20 a month less than the cost of leasing a car. He noted that users will be required to pay for gas and maintenance, as well as including the county as co-insured under an insurance program.

The county manager reported that several major counties in the state use the flat-rate program, with rates ranging from $150 in Fresno County to $233 in San Diego County.

Tarshes said he will be quite selective in determining which county officials, other than members of the Board of Supervisors, will be authorized to be reimbursed under the new plan, including himself.

Acknowledging that the $175 compensation is more than board members ordinarily would receive, Tarshes stated he feels that supervisors have been "conservative" in putting in claims for mileage expenses for routine use of their cars under the $40 and eight cents per mile plan.

S.S.F. Swamped With Flood Damage Claims

Still repairing damage from the October 11 flood, South San Francisco was hit by another kind of flood Monday night — a paper flood of water damage claims.

The largest claim was for $800,000, from Joseph L. Minotolli and the DLM Land Co., 400-428 N. Canal Street. They claim $300,000 damages, listing loss of business; damage to equipment, machinery and products; water damage to the buildings; and destruction of valuable documents and drawings, among other items. They also ask for $500,000 exemplary damages.

Sheldon M. Prezant, owner of the Prezant Co., 428 Canal Street, claims damages of $150,000, and asks for $250,000 exemplary damages.

George and Margaret Kurkhardt, owners of Burkhardt Manufacturing Co., 42 S. Lindon Avenue, claim $250,000 damages.

A series of smaller business damage claims included:

—Saracco Tank and Manufacturing Corp., 141 S. Maple Avenue, $50,000.

—Sullivan's GMC, 113 S. Linden Avenue, $10,000.

—Kransco Manufacturing Inc., 464 Victory Avenue, $30,000.

Even the PG&E has filed a claim, asking for $2,000 for a "cable dig-in" for 150 feet on Industrial Way and East Grand Avenue.

In addition, a number of homeowners have filed smaller claims. Six homeowners in the Circle Court area made claims for damage to their home, personal property, loss of use and enjoyment of their home and mental distress and anguish.

Two residents far from Colma Creek claimed damage when allegedly inadequate city drainage caused water to overflow at the home of Charles O. Bloom at 119 Arroyo Drive, and spread outward to the home of the James Mataragas, 121 Arroyo Drive. The two ask a total of $5,600 damages.

Meanwhile, the council held over a proposal for a $50,000 flood control project which would affect some 25 homeowners on Crestwood Drive and Dellbrook Avenue, in Sunshine Gardens. Fred Hull, director of the Department of Ecological Development, proposed placing the drainage line underground, from Hillside Boulevard to Crestwood Drive, so that it would not overflow.

Councilman Pat Ahern urged that those whose properties the water flows from should pay, rather than the city of South San Francisco. After some discussion, City Attorney John Noonan offered to explore that matter with the landowners and the other jurisdictions.

Among the parties mentioned as possibly causing the runoff were the school district, City of Colma, cemetery owners, truck farmers, and San Mateo County. A half dozen homeowners had filed claims previously as having been damaged; their representatives have been meeting with city officials and had approved the proposed solution.

Bruno Theft Series Told

A burglar apparently only interested in stereo components and records broke into the home of John Joseph Gregorie, on Huntington Avenue in San Bruno some time last Tuesday, resulting in a loss to Gregorie estimated at $200, police said.

Meanwhile, Arnold Grass reported to police that some time between Monday and Tuesday the right wing window of his car parked on Alcott Drive was broken and drills, a stud gun and electric tools with a total value of $694 were taken.

Home Care for Indigents Gets County Tryout

A trial program for home care and assistance to indigent persons confined to their homes was authorized Dec. 19 by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Financed by federal and state grants totaling $300,000, the board will institute a homemaker services program which must be adopted by the county on a permanent basis by April 1, 1974.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes, in recommending the trial program, said it will attempt to determine what services need to be performed, whether it is feasible to contract for the services, how many persons will need the services, the costs of a fully operational program, what problems will be encountered and whether the welfare rolls can be reduced by employing recipients as homemakers.

The trial program will be administered by the Social Services Division of the County Health and Welfare Department through the County Economic Opportunity Commission.

The cost of the program is estimated at $1,000 a year for those receiving such care in their homes, much less than the expense of being placed in an institution. Those employed for the service would provide care which the recipient is unable to do for himself because of disability.

Tarshes said that 75 per cent of the program will be financed from federal funds, and 25 per cent from the state.

Pacifica Players In Tryout

The Pacifica Spindrift Players announce that tryouts for their next production, Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" begin on January 2, from 7-9 p.m. a Sharp Park Community Library, in the Community Room, Hilton and Palmetto, Pacifica.

The remaining tryouts will be held at Oddstad Park, 1100 block of Crespi Drive, one mile east of the Coast Highway, Pacifica on Thursday, January 4, 7 and 9 from 7-9 p.m. and also on January 7 from 2-5 p.m.

The cast of the play consists of five men and four women. Further information may be had by calling Dorothy Brenke or Marge Heise.

Arrest in SSF Crashes

South San Francisco police last week arrested a 27-year-old San Francisco man on a drunk driving charge after he was involved in two separate accidents.

Police charge that Rudolfo Golondrina, 771 Forty-seventh Avenue, was driving eastbound on West Orange Avenue near Southwood Junior High School, struck a parked car belonging to Joseph Gallegos of 744 Cottonwood Avenue, and continued on to the intersection of El Camino Real. There, he collided with the car of Hall Won, 43, of San Francisco, who was northbound on El Camino Real.

Won's car spun around and apparently collided with the car of Robert Dalcolletto, 34, 58B Station Avenue, Daly City.

Golondrina sustained facial cuts and his car received major damage. He refused medical attention, however. Police held him in lieu of $480 bail. He was due to appear in court today.

Miscellaneous Questions and Answers to BBB

QUESTION: I have been following advertisements put out by the National Public Land Information Services concerning "public land" for sale in Florida. Could you give me any information concerning the sale of this land?

ANSWER: The United States Department of the Interior advises that there is no public domain land for sale in Florida and none is expected to be offered for sale. The Agency further states that there is no Florida state owned land currently on the market.

QUESTION: I would like some information concerning the recent advertising of an "Electronic TV Antenna" which claims "turns your ordinary house wiring system into a SUPER POWER TV ANTENNA . . . no more expensive roof antenna or unsightly "rabbit ears" . . . plugs into nearest outlet . . . outstanding TV reception."

ANSWER: The only information the Better Business Bureau files contain concerning socket TV antennas points out that house-wiring does not provide a useful TV antenna because of the random nature of its length and direction. To the Bureau's knowledge nothing has been changed to alter the validity of that information.

QUESTION: A friend of mine purchased in Germany $20 gold coin with the Indian head on it. Do you know of any bank where I could purchase a similar coin?

ANSWER: Contact a reputable coin dealer as banks in the United States do not as a rule, deal in gold coins. Today even coin buyers must be careful not to buy one of the many gold coins which are being heavily counterfeited overseas and are finding their way into this country. Many of the countries, such as Lebanon, in which this is being done, do not have laws against the sale and manufacture of these counterfeits, since the coins no longer have legal-tender status. Many American tourists get taken in by the bargain prices of these reproductions.

Sabbath Services at Cong. B'nai B'rith

Sabbath services will be conducted at Congregation B'nai Israel, 1575 Annie Street in Daly City on Friday beginning at 8 p.m.

The service will be conducted by Cantor Henry Greenberg, assisted by members of the Religious Practices Committee, chairmaned by Henry Fuhs.

Children of the Sunday school whose birthdays fall during the month of December will be honored during this Birthday Sabbath.

To be called to the pulpit for a blessing will be Andrea Altechuler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Potak; Michael Friedman, son of Bernard Friedman; Samuel Greendorfer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Greendorfer; Lloyd Goldfarb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goldfarb; Cheryl Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonah Miller; Sherri Mordokowicz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Mordokowicz; Susan Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sanders, and Richard Tissot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Louis Tissot.

The children will also be presented with a small gift by President of the Congregation, A. Arthur Hirschhorn.

The Men's Club of Congregation B'nai Israel will hold its first meeting of the new year January 2.

The event will be a dinner-meeting, with no-host cocktails at 7 p.m. at the Skyliner Restaurant, Daly City. The meeting will be under the direction of the new board of directors; president Julius Michaelis will preside.

The possible formation of an Israeli Investment Club will be discussed and a guest speaker will participate. Also on the agenda will be a report of the Men's Club installation to be held on January 5.

Man Charged In Assault On Officer

San Bruno Police Sgt. Richard Reed will be sporting an unwanted memento of the holiday season for the next several days.

The "gift" was allegedly presented to the sergeant while attempting to apprehend a 6-0, 200-pound Pacifica man on San Mateo Avenue, Friday night.

The man, Phillip Gordon Malone, 31, of 1580 Higgins Way, Pacifica, was reportedly arguing with a woman companion when he suddenly punched her and knocked her to the pavement.

Officer Demartini was able to subdue Malone. He was booked into city jail on charges of resisting arrest, disturbing the peace, assault and battery on his 27-year-old female companion, and assault on a peace officer.

Mills Game—One Coach Smiled

By STEVE JOHNSON
Post Correspondent

There were two Mid-Peninsula League coaches down at Sequoia High December 19.

One was all smiles after the game — a 72-59 Mills victory. That was Viking coach Bill Smith, whose team won its fourth consecutive game. The other had a hard time smiling. That was Hillsdale coach Bill Wilkin. He was still thinking about the loss of star junior forward Rod Williams, out for six weeks with a broken hand.

"It's going to be hard," said Wilkin. "It'll take time for us to get used to playing without him. Just this morning in practice we were waiting around looking for Rod. They'll have to realize he's not going to be there."

Smith sympathized. "It's a bummer. I know the same type of thing happened to us when Don (Weaver) was out. But the thing to do is be confident you can still do a job. You can't let all that work and sweat go to pot."

Wilkin probably wasn't too encouraged by what he saw in front of him. The Vikings, despite constant substitution and occasional flurries of turnovers, still looked tough to handle. At the least.

Sequoia, led by the run-and-gun efforts of guards Mike Rice and Mack Thorne, was never overwhelmed, but never did manage to force the Vikings into panic with its running game.

To Smith, that was a good sign. "We handled it all right. These games are good for us. Sequoia took it right to us — just like South City and San Carlos. But we stayed poised. Our guys played like seniors."

Smith's best senior, and perhaps the best one in the county in forward, Weaver, was exceptional. Although not in the starting lineup (just a rest), Weaver broke loose for 24 points in the first half to personally keep the Vikes in the game.

Kurt McCracken and Kevin Harvey spearheaded a full court Mills press that helped the Vikings run up a quick eight point lead in the second half that was maintained the rest of the way.

"Those guys are quick, and there's no substitute for quickness on a press," noted Smith. "We had to give our press some work. Now at least we've used it a little. And if you can press these guys, you can press anybody."

Thorne, equally adept at the outside jumper and drive to the basket, had 22 to lead the Cherokee offense. Rice chipped in with 16.

Weaver, playing at most a half, paced Mills with 27. Tom MacKenzie backed him with 14 and Bruce DelFante 11, and both showed capable of being a deciding factor in future games should they be put in such a situation.

IN MAT TOURNEY

Crestmoor Seventh

Crestmoor High's Falcons were the top Peninsula placer in Tournament held at California State University at San Francisco with 68 team points.

The Falcons placed seventh in the 16-team tourney, just two points behind sixth-place Watsonville. Eight Falcons placed in the top six in each weight class yesterday. They had one first, one second, one fourth, one fifth and ours sixths.

Steve Cook of Crestmoor, wrestling at 145, finished first, pinning his opponent in the final match. He had three pins in his four matches. That record was good enough to tie him with a Fairfield grappler for the Outstanding Wrestler of the Tournament award.

Bruce Stevens, wrestling in the unlimited weight class, took a second for Crestmoor.

One other local grappler took a first place ribbon. Mike Everson from Hillsdale. He was yesterday's Peninsula Christmas Invitational Wrestling wrestling at 154's and took all four of his matches.

Other top placers included Ken Atelian of San Carlos, who placed third in 112's, and Terra Nova's John Fritz, who was third in 177's.

Serramonte also came up with a good performance, getting two fifth places from their wrestlers in 95's and 103's.

Hillsdale finished in eighth place in the team total with 44, far behind Crestmoor. San Carlos was right on Hillsdale's tail with 42.

Jefferson's Matmen Down Hillsdale Unit

Six pins by the host Jefferson High wrestlers were too much for Hillsdale to overcome yesterday as the Knights fell, 36-31.

Both teams were hurt by the fact that Christmas vacation was in full swing, and many wrestlers decided to depart for farther climes.

Hillsdale did come up with some good performances, though Four Knights remained undefeated. Pat Martin-Vegue (103s) and Gary Ching (133s) took decisions and Bill Brendel (145s) and Mike Everson (145s) won by pins.

Jeff's little Fred Aguino came up with another pin, asserting himself as probably the top 95-pounder in the area.

Le Pacini
A Round of Miscellany

BASEBALL . . . Last week we mentioned that Keith Hernandez, the former Terra Nova, Capuchino athletic-great-majoring-in-baseball, was featured in Sports Illustrated as not only one of the bright young Cardinals of the future, but as one of the top players in the Florida Instructional League.

Now Keith's made it in another national sporting publication, The Sporting News. Once again, one of the scouts — as was written in Sports Illustrated — called him "another Musial," and even labeled him a cinch future Hall of Fame member.

Bob Kennedy, Cardinal director of player development, was quoted thusly: "Hernandez has as good a batting stroke as you'd ever want to see . . . Defensively, he could play first base in the big leagues right now. He doesn't run well, but he hits the ball well all over, and he can hit the ball out, too.

"The kid has such a good fundamental stroke and plays first base so well that I wouldn't be afraid to start him in the big leagues right now."

George Silvey, the Cards' director of player procurement, said, "He (Hernandez) has a good, short stride, holds back well and hits to all fields . . . Keith has a good arm, too. And once he gets into his swing, you can see why people say he reminds them of Musial."

Even Papa John Hernandez, the old Mission High first baseman, is quoted, "I know my kid — I know he can hit."

That doesn't come just from a proud father, but a guy who knows something about hitting himself. John, who Cal baseball coach George Wolfman (who has sent several players to the majors, including Gus Triandos and Andy Messersmith) still calls the best hitter he ever saw, once led the American Association in hitting when that league could have been a third major league, and was considered one of the top young hitting prospects in baseball until his eyes went bad on him. An ex-Cardinal organization man himself, John would gladly trade his lost major league career for one each for his sons — Keith, and Gary, another first sacker in the Cardinal organization.

As if you couldn't have guessed it, the A's led the majors this past season in roster bodies, accounting for 49 players who at one time or another showed their faces in the A's lineup. Which must be an all-time record for a World's champion, especially since champs are supposed to display stability.

And if anybody keep records on reclaimed players, the A's have to be undisputed champs, going away.

Another odd statistic. There are only four native Canadians in major league baseball, and they're all pitchers. If you want to win a bar bet, they are: Ferguson Jenkins, Reggie Cleveland, Ron Taylor and Mike Kilkenny.

FOOTBALL . . . If you're interested in odd football statistics, you might like to know that not one seasonal rushing leader has made it to the Super Bowl, and only one — Cleveland's LeRoy Kelly, has managed to make it to a league title game. And, in the last 12 seasons, the only rushing titlists who have played for championship teams have been Jim Taylor for Green Bay in 1962, Jim Brown for Cleveland in 1964, Billy Cannon for Houston in 1961, and Cookie Gilchrist for Buffalo in 1964.

BASKETBALL . . . If you've read the column the past two weeks, you know we've been on a crusade to expose the dunderhead tactics used to pick post season football All-Americans. If there is anything worse than post season All-American teams, it's pre-season All-American teams. Why a pre-season All-American team is absolutely silly is so self-evident that we won't insult your intelligence explaining it. Which is more than Sports magazine will do for you. In their January, 1973 edition they have Curt Gowdy pick a college basketball All-America.

Picking an All-American team with the season barely underway is bad enough, but as usual Gowdy ignores such rules as five men to a basketball team. He picks 10 men on his first team, 10 on his second team, and then even picks an all-sophomore and all-freshman team. We'll give him this, though. At least the frosh and soph teams have the standard five men a side. Which still gives Gowdy a squad with a roster numbering 26 men. Boy, would it be confusing to coach that team!

Four of the Bay Area's outstanding high school basketball teams will meet in the first Annual Holiday Season Basketball Doubleheader tonight and tomorrow night at San Francisco State.

St. Ignatius and Lowell from San Francisco, Mills High from Millbrae and Redwood High from San Rafael will kick off this year's festivities.

St. Ignatius and Lowell, the WCAL and AAA representatives, respectively, will open tonight at 7 p.m., while Redwood from the Marin Athletic League will meet Mills of the MPL.

Tomorrow night, the Lowell five takes on Mills at 7 p.m., with S.I. meeting Redwood in the 8:45 finale.

Tickets are $1 general admission and students with student body cards from any school will be admitted for 50 cents. Children will also be admitted for 50 cents.

SAY WHEN — What was happening in sports? During this week in . . .

1952 — Phillies' Robin Roberts is chosen as the Sporting News' Major League Player of the Year, as he posts a record of 28-7 with a 2.59 ERA for a weak fourth place club. The St. Louis "Bible of Baseball" thus ignores baseball's "official" National League Most Valuable Player that year, the Cub slugger, Hank Sauer.

1966 — The Sporting News makes another choice — this one in football. They pick Y. A. Tittle as the NFL's Player of the Year, as YAT leads the Giants to a 12-2 record and a Eastern Conference title largely on the strength of his 33 touchdown tosses, breaking Johnny Unitas' 1959 single season standard of 32.

1967 — Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper are named for the fourth year to the All-America golf team, as announced by Golf Magazine, who also breaks rules by not even picking a foursome.

Falcons Nip Terra Nova

By RAY ROTOLO
Post Correspondent

Did somebody say something about Terra Nova High's basketball team being a pushover?

You couldn't get Crestmoor Coach Pete Pontacq to believe it after his Falcons escaped with a 69-67 overtime come-from-behind victory in Pacifica.

In a game which Terra Nova richly deserved but did not get, the Falcons tipped in a shot to tie the game with 0:03 on the clock to get into overtime, finally taking the lead for the first time in the game on a lay-in by Rick Suarez with 1:55 left in the game.

Led by their forwards, Pete Wathen and Ross Compton, Terra Nova zipped to an 8-0 lead with only 50 seconds elapsed. Crestmoor closed to 10-8 but then the Tigers shot ahead again to a 18-8 margin. Buckets by both teams left the quarter at 20-14.

Crestmoor's offense, which is, "Get the ball inside to center Mark Rosekind for the two footer," according to Pontacq, did not work most of the game. Rosekind had a cold first half shooting.

Enter Steve Bowman. Bowman was personally responsible for keeping his teammates in the game as he hit for 16 of his game high 24 in the first half, and ten in the second quarter.

With just a couple of minutes gone in the second stanza and TN up 24-14 Crestmoor (Bowman) reeled off 14 points to the Tigers' four to tie the game 28-all. A three point play by Wathen put TN up and halftime saw a home team ahead 33-31.

In the fourth quarter, five quick points by Crestmoor guard Jeff Kollman and a bucket by Bowman tied the game at 54-54. Crestmoor then went into a stall for over two minutes. This backfired, though, when Terra Nova stole the ball for a lay-in and the lead with 3:00 on the clock. Another bucket put them up by four with 1:44.

Then Mr. Rosekind began to assert himself. His three point play closed the gap to one 58-57. Compton made it 60-57 but Crestmoor came right back to make it 60-59 with 0:55.

With just 30 seconds remaining on the clock Wathen canned both ends of the one-on-one for what seemed an insurmountable lead. 63-59.

Crestmoor worked the ball inside to Rosekind for a jumper with 0:17. TN then lost the ball, Crestmoor took a shot that missed but Rosekind was there for the tip with two seconds left to go into overtime, which Crestmoor managed to survive on another Rosekind tip.

Said Pontacq, "We didn't deserve it; they outplayed us for the entire game."

For the game the Tigers shot a torrid 60 per cent. They also shot 75 per cent from the line.

Wells Fargo Defeats the Juggernauts

In the open division of the three man hunch league, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, Wells Fargo defeated the Juggernauts, 41-19.

Adrian Zvereff and Ron Bourdon led the balanced attack with 18 and 15 points, respectively, as they controlled the offensive boards. Adam Young tallied eight and Dick Shaffer seven in losing effort for the Juggernauts.

The Super Flys ruined the league debut of "Jeanie" Lee Attabit with a 41-36 squeaker over the Odd Squad.

Chris Gee scored 17 and Larry Norton added 12 for the Super Flys' cause. Joe Skaar hit the hoops for 15 big tallies and Roy Reitz added 12 for the Odd Squad. Attabit, coming back after a two-year lay-off, tallied only two but dished off numerous assists to his teammates.

The Sportsmen won by forfeit over the Ques.

In the six foot and under division, the San Bruno Cavaliers kept their title hopes alive by defeating the Leapin' Lizards, 42-18. Dick Broderick scored 19 points and Gil Acevado added 15 for the Cavaliers' cause. Al Costano scored 12 points for the losers.

The Grasshoppers behind the scoring of Mark Stella and Gary Thompson landed on the S.B. Marines by the score of 41-24. Stella hit for 18 and Thompson 14 as they controlled all the rebounds with their height advantage. John Epps scored 11 and Larry Baldlins added 10 for the Marines in a losing effort.

In the final game of the evening, Joe Skaar and Roy Reitz led the Odd Squad to a 41-35 victory over the No Names to move into a tie for first place with them. Skarr hit 14 and Reitz 10 but it was once again "Leapin'" Lee Attabit who contributed greatly to the win with his assists and great defense. Larry Norton scored 17 for the losers.

Jeff Wins 2nd

Both Crestmoor and Jefferson highs' basketball teams possess similar offenses in that each squad has one solid front line scoring threat, one guard capable of scoring and three other players whose hustling output is regarded as a bonus if and when it occurs.

Last night, however, the Jefferson Indians got the ball to their ace scorer, Harold Norman, while Crestmoor failed to get the ball to forward Mark Rosekind. The result was a lopsided 57-38 victory over the Falcons in a preliminary game at Skyline College.

It was the second win in a row for the Indians (2-4) while the Falcons dropped to a 3-6 record.

Norman was virtually unstoppable as he connected for 23 points. The Falcon defense mistakenly allowed Jefferson to begin its offense within 15 feet of the bucket and get closer as the plays progressed.

Not able to rebound (Rosekind, their leading rebounder as well as scorer being hampered by a flu bug), Crestmoor fell quickly behind by ten points and it got steadily grimmer in a first half that was probably the Falcons' worst of the year.

Crestmoor got as close as nine, 33-24, midway through the third quarter, but Norman hit a short jumper, guard Jesse Byers hit a 15-footer and the Indians were off and winging to an eventual 21-point lead.

Reactions Sought to SMUHS Requirements

January 8 is the deadline for parents, students, faculty and other interested citizens to submit their reactions to the proposed new graduation requirements for the district.

According to Henry Use, chairman of the committee working on the proposal, responses are beginning to come in from faculty and students, but the committee also wants to hear from the community at large so that useful ideas can be included in the report before its presentation to the Board of Trustees next April.

Any parent who has not seen the text of the proposal may do so by contacting his P-TA. Parents of grade school and junior high school students also are being informed by their own P-TA's so they will have a voice in the decision-making. Use said the committee realizes that many questions may be raised about the requirements and their effects. He therefore urges everyone to familiarize himself with the proposals, write down his comments and reactions and send them to: Henry Use, chairman, graduation requirements, San Mateo High School.

Discussions are planned for early January with 85 students from each high school in an all-day session.

From the faculty, the committee would like to learn if each graduation requirement appears significant, whether the methods of evaluating student achievement are educationally significant, and what other methods there are for evaluation.

The new requirements place much of the responsibility upon the student, but the faculty still has the responsibility of helping each student to assess his social and individual needs and desires, and to respond to the changes that may occur in the student. The faculty also must continue to develop alternate learning experiences which would allow a student to reach specified levels of achievement required for graduation. Students also will be encouraged to create acceptable alternatives to accomplish the requirements.

According to Use, the new requirements will not be incompatible with present course instruction. However, they do emphasize "demonstrated performance in specific expectancies," he said, rather than mere class attendance and the completion of certain courses. Therefore, some basic changes in instructional materials and methods are expected to result.

Use said those working on the project "have tried very hard to write a set of requirements that seem more relevant to the needs of individual students than the present requirements."

"We have been concerned with addressing the specific needs of each of our students," he said, "and with being able to ascertain, within reasonable limits, the individual competencies that will help each graduate become a contributing member of society."

J. CARL FERRELL has been named sales and promotion director of the San Francisco District, Holiday Inns, Inc. Ferrell, previously the district's executive account manager, succeeds John T. Reavley, who becomes sales and promotion director for Holiday's Chicago sales district. Ferrell resides at 32 Nevada Street, Redwood City, with wife Jo and the youngest of their three children.

Tarshes Assures Employes On Contract Negotiations

San Mateo County employes are being assured in a memorandum from County Manager M. D. Tarshes that although no agreement has been reached in 1973 salary negotiations, the Board of Supervisors and county management "will try to reach agreements in a timely fashion so that there will be no problems regarding effective dates or retroactivity."

Tarshes notes in the memo that up to November 20 only one employe organization had submitted its requests. Since that time, he said, three other groups have submitted their requests to county management.

"We have started to meet and confer with these organizations, but have not yet reached any understanding," the county manager states.

Tarshes also notes that county management is concerned that the present employe health insurance program "may not give us the most for the money" and that he expects to suggest to the Board of Supervisors that "we should look for improvements in our group insurance programs."

The county manager reports that the county has no control over the current controversy, now in Superior Court, over the representation of some 1,000 county clerical employes.

The employes voted last spring to be represented by Local 829 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), AFL-CIO, but the AFL-CIO executive board has decreed that the clerical workers are still represented by Local 715 of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU), also an AFL-CIO affiliate.

Tarshes says the county is bound by the election in which employes chose representation by AFSCME. Presiding Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn has the jurisdictional matter under submission.

Wider Role For Women In Scouting

A wider interpretation for the participation of women in the Boy Scouts of America locally has been announced by Albert J. Horn, president of the San Mateo County Council.

Women may now serve as members and associate members of local councils including membership on the Executive Board and district committees. They may also be named as institutional representatives, Explorer Advisors and Skippers, members of the College Scouter Reserve, unit "commissioners for Cub Scouting, and as Cub Scouting roundtable commissioners.

Horn said that there are already over 1800 women serving in such positions as den leaders, den leader coaches, assistant den leaders, merit badge counselors, associate advisors, and as unit committee chairmen and members.

The long-standing Women's Reserve has been changed to Scouter Reserve and may now include males and females, Horn said. These people may be in fathers' or mothers' clubs and serve as unit organizers, training course faculty, and Exploring consultants.

"In addition to the opening of the Boy Scouts of America to more women," Horn said, "we're recognizing the abilities of younger men and offering them responsibilities that we know they can carry."

Webelos den leaders, assistant Webelos den leaders, and and assistant den leaders may now be commissioned at 18 years of age, and 18-year-olds may serve as merit badge counselors. Formerly, younger counselors could register only for merit badges in which the principal requirements were for physical skills.

Youth members were added to the executive board of the Scout council two years ago. Currently, Robert Gress of San Jose State College, Evan Moore of Stanford University and Alan Tsuda of Redwood City have full membership on the policy making group, Horn said.

Man Held on Kidnap Count

A Redwood City father, accused of the kidnap, robbery and rape of a young wife from a Hillsdale Shopping Center parking lot in San Mateo, has been bound over to Superior Court where he is to appear December 28 for arraignment.

There will be no reduction in the bail of $25,000. Municipal Court Judge William Lanam ruled Friday.

Held for trial is John Charles Fitzpatrick, 27, a bearded father of three.
